

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a method and system for viewing reports on a network. One embodiment of the present invention employs a temporary database for holding data to be used in the reports, where the data extracted from a source database. A
5 format module formats the reports using the data in the temporary database, and an access module allows users to access the reports created by the format module.

10039362.102601